The Bandstand, Westcliff-on-Sea.—Erected in 1909 at a cost of £2,000, the Cliff Bandstand is one of the most beautiful in England. Painted in white and gold it stands on the breezy cliff with all the panorama of sea and river spread out to view. At night, however, when the enclosure is festooned with electric lamps, and all the lines of the Bandstand picked out in points of variegated light, the scene is brilliant and fairy-like, while the balmy air is throbbing with the music of the best military bands.
